

MARY MOORE TOPS WOMEN'S RANKINGS

In one of the closest races in women's ranking history Mary Moore took top honors for the second consecutive year, but only by a few percentage points. Moore finished on top with a 175.506, down about two pins from last year's ranking.

Close behind Moore were Carol Wiley and Gracie Freeman. Wiley finished with a 175.466 and Freeman wound up the season with 175.366.

The women's association began its ranking policy in the 1970-71 season. In order to be ranked a woman must, first, be a member of the WDCAWBA and have an average of 170 or better; she must bowl in at least two different centers with a minimum of 70 league games in one and 50 league games in the other; she must also bowl a minimum of nine games in the annual women's city tournament, and she must have at least 129 sanctioned games overall.

The bowlers listed below under "Honorable Mention" failed to meet all the criteria necessary for ranking but the women's board felt they deserved recognition for their excellent performances.

The top five women were presented plaques noting their accomplishments at the women's semi-annual meeting at the Sheraton National Motor Hotel in November.
