

TIPS FOR BETTER BOWLING

Spend Your Summer Wisely

— by John Sudduth

So the winter season is over and you guess you've got time to bowl in only one league, and maybe bowl some tournaments once in a while, right? Not so fast. How about turning this summer into a long practice session?

Summer is a great time to practice. You shouldn't have a problem with lane availability. You can take the time to try that new grip or new ball you have been wanting to experiment with.

It's a great time for instruction. You can try that four-step approach, or if you already take four, try five steps. Go see that certified instructor; take the chance, try something different.

Sure, you can still be a swimmer, tennis player, or golfer; but set aside some time for bowling, and practice. You may be surprised at how much you can improve for the new bowling season.

Remember, summertime is a great opportunity to practice and beat the heat. And everyone knows that practice makes perfect (scores).
